

Working Families Party Endorses Rory Lancman for the 25th Assembly District

"The Working Families Party is the most dynamic political force in New York State, and their support is as much a testament to the progressive values we share as it is a statement about the level of energy and enthusiasm my campaign is generating across political lines," said Rory Lancman, after he was endorsed by the WFP at their convention this weekend. Lancman added, "The WFP is driving the agenda when it comes to so many issues important to New Yorkers, such as access to quality health care, expanding affordable housing, and cleaning up our political system. I look forward to working together with the WFP to change the culture of stagnation that currently infects state politics and policymaking."
